BREAKFAST BITES.

The oyster season is over.

It will next appear that Blaine was the original Harrison man.

Doctors say that a healthy adult should eat at least ten ounces of meat each day.

Pressing a finger on the upper lip will abort a sneeze if thought of in time.

It is the spring cleaning which drives a man out of his house in a summers-y manner.

Ohio is the twenty-fourth State in the ballot reform procession.—[New York World.]

Fritz Emmet has sold his $4,000 dog, and yet it was about as sober a dog as any man could desire to own.

"Why don't you have your new umbrella mended?" "I don't want to be robbed of my good name!"

Mrs. E. L. Davenport is seriously ill. She is 65 years of age, and has been absent from the stage nearly a year.

During one day the human body generates enough heat to melt forty pounds of ice and raise it to boiling point.

At the sale of boxes for a Grant Monument Fund concert in New York City recently, Mrs. Grover Cleveland got the first choice for $25.

Soft-shell crabs are just splendid at this time, but they come pretty high-priced in the first-class restaurants that serve them.

Three thousand wine-glasses, of pressed glass made in Ohio, were used at the big McKinley tariff dinner in New York the other night.

A woman can always understand why a man should fall in love with her, but she finds it difficult to explain why he should fall out.

When a woman can earn from $25 to $30 a week by knowing how to cut dresses, is she not rather unkind to decline to support a husband through the baseball season?

Mrs. Don Cameron, accompanied by her little daughter, Martha, Miss Rachel Cameron and Miss Hattie Blaine, will spend the summer in Continental travel.

Dr. Martha Robinson, of Cleveland, has been her father's partner in dentistry for several years, and is said to draw better, especially with some classes, than her father.

Donna Isidora Cousing, in Chili, is supposed to be the richest woman in the world. Her monthly income is $80,000. She is a stately widow of 35 years, and a famous horsewoman.

Moody, the revivalist, will have a good assistant this summer in the well-known London preacher, Rev. F.
B. Meyer, who is coming out to this country to give a helping hand in a labor which seems to grow with what it feeds upon.

A doctor says that 75 out of every 100 persons who fall into a physician's hands would get well without any help, and the majority of the remaining twenty-five are past all human aid, and the physician gets the blame for not saving their lives.

A landlord died recently in St.
Petersburg who remembered his tenants in his will. He ordered that tenants of ten years should keep their apartments free of rent for two years after his death; such as have lived in his house over three years are not to pay rent for three months; all other tenants are not to be charged with rent for one month.

In several of the States, including Ohio, at the present time passengers in the dining and buffet cars are informed that no wines or liquors can be served until the State line is passed.
But the Colorado Legislature has passed an act providing that beverages of all kinds may be sold in such cars "without obtaining any town, city, county or State license as liquor dealers or otherwise," which is extremely liberal.

Miss Jane Osgood, a wealthy lady of Norwich, Conn., is very fond of cats, and in her luxurious home she has a lot of them which are beauties. Miss Osgood recently gave a cat party, which was attended by a score of cats, which brought their owners along.
The invitations were printed on linen paper, and there was a picture of a sleek and beautiful cat at the head of the card. The cats got acquainted with each other very readily in half an hour, and then all had a feast, which comprised various kinds of fish and other viands.

Manual Training in the Schools.

The listener advises any one who has his doubts about the usefulness and practicability of manual training in the schools, or who has a friend who is yet unconvinced, to go to himself and take his friend to see the great exhibition of the work of school children at the Boston English School, and observe the pupils actually at work with their carpentry, their sewing or their cooking. The English High School is certainly the most instructive place in Boston just now, even if it is vacation. There is outwardly a certain sameness in the exhibits, but a little observation will detect many differences. Schools as far west as Chicago, and as far south as Washington, were represented with all kinds of work—wood carving, joinery, iron work, moulding in clay, drawing, sewing, cookery and all the branches of kindergarten work. At the head of the whole, as the model, as yet unapproached, which all other manual training schools are working up to, is the exhibit of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Here we find genuine art—and the mechanical skill which is the really trained handicraft of this generation. Standing next below the Technology exhibit is the work of the Manual Training High School of the city of Philadelphia. The school is of course not a special school, where the pupils spend all their time, like the Institute of Technology. It is merely a branch of the regular public schools, where pupils from the high and grammar schools spend five hours a week in learning how to do something. How well they learn to do it is proved by these beautiful examples of wrought iron scroll work, which would delight the eye of John Ruskin himself. To learn such work as this, by the way, is just what Mr. Ruskin has been spending his life in trying to get British workmen to do; and here are public school boys doing it, with five hours a week of practice. The same boys learn how to file and fit all manner of iron castings, as well as to draw exquisitely pretty designs for art decorations. The Philadelphia Manual Training High School represents the marriage of Art and Industry.

The incredulous person, who sniffs with scorn whenever Industrial Art in schools is mentioned, and thinks of it as something fancy and new-fangled, might learn more, and scoff a little less, perhaps, if he saw the exhibit of the sewing done by girls in the Boston public schools. There are some darned stockings and patched trousers in this department, which are certainly a work of art. However a yellow cotton stocking, with a beautiful big darn in the toe, made by a school girl a dozen years old, entirely as the result of instruction obtained in the schools, may also claim to belong to the realm of the practical; and so may the symmetrical, comfortable looking patches on the seat of a pair of boy's pantaloons. Here are several entire suits of boys' clothes—coats, waists, trousers—wholly made by school girls. The cooking is equally practical. Poor girls will tell you exactly why you should not put flour in an omelette, as so many housewives ignorantly do; "it's because the flour takes longer to cook than the eggs," says little Maggie O'Brien briskly; "and if you cook the flour enough your eggs'll be overdone, and if you cook your eggs just enough your flour will be half raw and not fit to eat. No fancy business or mere book learning about that eminently practical bit of information; yet the light flaky omelette that little Maggie O'Brien makes for you in the cooking class is a work of art, too. With such a she will win her way, sometime, to the heart of an honest working man, by the usual avenue—his stomach, and will give him health and home attractions.—[Boston Transcript.]

California's Pure Wines.

It is a fact not generally known, but nevertheless true, that California wines are purer than any other in the world. This is not because the wine-growers are more honest than their European confreres, but because it does not pay to adulterate the juice of the grapes. The supply with us is greater than the demand, and grape juice is cheaper than any foreign ingredient. Such a thing as the failure of the crop is unknown, while in Germany and France if a vineyard produces one good crop in five years it is doing well. We shall, therefore, never have the difference in the growths of different years that is so common abroad and makes epicures so particular as to the vintage set before them.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

The escholtzia has been adopted as the State flower of California.

The Irish, English, Spanish and Persian, ought to be transplanted every second or third year.

The advisability of asking the Legislature to pass a law with the object of controlling the plum knot is discussed by Michigan horticulturists.

For market gardeners the following early cabbages are recommended in a bulletin from the Pennsylvania Experiment Station: Early Wakefield All Seasons, Henderson's Summer Early Flat Dutch.

It is told in the American Garden that the fuschia, "Storm King," still holds its own as the leading dwarf, double white variety. It is probably the earliest flowering variety there is among the double ones.

The prices gained by high-grade or pure bred beavers in Chicago, compared with the prices for scrabs, are decidedly encouraging to breeders and growers of the former.

Indiana has a new road law which forbids hauling more than a ton on narrow-tired wagons or more than 2,500 pounds on broad-tired ones, while the roads are soft, under a penalty of from $5 to $50.

Judging from the varying opinions expressed about dehorning cattle, it would appear that the first thing to be done is to settle whether or not the practice is really to the advantage of the cattle, and whether the operation is cruel.

The California Fruit says that sorrel can be eradicated by an application of twenty-five pounds of slacked lime to the square rod, applied broadcast. Digging and cultivating seems only to spread and encourage the pest to make renewed efforts.
